

The Green Doors

Tom and Sam were two friends who lived next door to each other.

One day Tom decided to paint his front door. He only had half a tin of blue paint.

Sam looked at his door and thought it was looking shabby too. He went into his shed to see if he had any paint. He found half a tin of yellow.

"I don't really want a yellow door," he said to Tom, and looked hopefully at the tin of blue paint. But there was only enough for one.

Tom thought.

"I know!" he said happily.

"If we mix our paint together we'll have green. Wouldn't it look nice to have two smart green doors side by side?"

So that is what they did, and everyone who passed thought how cheerful and smart the two green doors looked.

